

13 – Surrey County Council summary of other industrial activity in area:

The mineral sites are shown in pale yellow on the maps below:

Map 1/.

Lilac circle:

This has Brockham oil well site as it's centre with a 5km radius.

Red Triangle:

Brockham well located at western end of the triangle, Buckland Sand Pit (silica sand extraction completed and restored to lakes with no infill), at the eastern point and Betchworth Quarry landfill (an old chalk quarry which took domestic waste and is unlined), at the northern point. Below the red circle, to left of the word Buckland, in another pale yellow rectangle, which represents Reigate Road Sand Pit, which is still in active mineral extraction with inert infill.

Lilac circle:

This has Horse Hill well site as it's centre with a 5km radius.

Red Triangle:

Horse Hill located directly above Hookwood at the bottom right of the triangle, to the north is Buckland Sand Pit (to tie in to the other map), at Leigh is the Bury Hill exploration site, and at Beare Green is South Holmwood, with Capel Brickworks further to the southwest at Capel. Both of the brickworks traditionally undertake clay lifts in spring and autumn to provide a large working stockpile for the next six months. Volumes will depend upon demand of course. On the western edge of the map you can see another pale yellow area at (Wa)lliswood, where Smokejacks is sited, yet another clay quarry and brickworks.
